Synopsis

A story about a woman who has an unimportant job now but in the future wishes to be one of the best lighting designers!

We are about to present to you a commendable working woman of today through a success story of an older single woman who struggles to succeed through a fight with time and whose ability is always underestimated.

People say that society today is becoming a better place for women to work and live in, yet it still circles around men. We are about to draw dramatically how women with great abilities thrive to survive and the joys and sorrows that accompany such intense experiences.

We would like to advertise Seoul as a tourist attraction, much like Hong Kong used their million-dollar night view as a cultural product by developing a new genre called lighting art through the media.

I'm the same Joo Young Jae... But why are there so many things I can't do just because I'm 30? Only the numbers have changed... why is it so hard?"

Young Jae's dream is to become one of the most famous lighting designers. Her idol is the worldwide famous lighting designer Ingo Maurer, the "Poetess of light." Just a month ago 30 year old Young Jae was working in the general affairs department of Miam but then got demoted to the Kangnam exhibition hall. Her boyfriend Chan Ha proposed to her but she turned him down because she wanted to gain more experience in her work. Her work life was a living hell, and now, 3 months later, Chan Ha appears before her, a perfect man. Out of pride Young Jae tells Chan Ha that she has a boyfriend, and is startled when he invites her and her boyfriend to some lighting associations' couple's party. She hurries to find someone to take her when she sees an escort aid advertisement. She calls and finds someone to escort her to the party. But it was hard to act like lovers with someone she's never met before. Boy, did she feel miserable.

Finally an opportunity presented itself to Young Jae.

Miam's best man! An independent who has set up a company of his own has asked Young Jae to come and work for him at his company! Without any questions she quit her job and went to her new workplace only to find out it was a mistake. They meant to ask Joo Young Joo, a member of the development plan department of Miam, to come... In addition, the owner of the company was that escort she took to the party! No matter what she can't go back to her old job; she has no choice except to stay.
