▶ Synopsis

The Ganges, 'Ganga', mother in Hindu, was The seed of ancient civilization 5000 years ago. Its strong waters still pierce through 2460 Kilometers of India, playing a pivotal role in India's history and culture.

The lifeline that made civilization possible 5000 years a go continues to flow to this day, worshipped as a holy river by India's 1.2 billion people.

The Ganges, the beginning and end of India, is the only window into India's past and the only way to understand India
