MBC

DRAMA

70mins X 16eps

9 OUT OF 10 LABOR INSPECTORS DIDN'T CHOOSE TO BECOME WHAT THEY ARE.

Labor inspectors usually sign up for an administrative civil servant job, and just happened to become a labor inspector. They don't get a bonus when they do a good job, nor do they get fired for doing a lousy job. Even when they are trying to do their job, it's hard when they don't have the authority to arrest someone due to corrupt business owners not cooperating. This drama reveals the reality of what it means to be a labor inspectors. The main character is a labor inspector who goes to war against those in power for the sakes of those who are powerless. He can no longer sit back and watch people suffer. This may be fiction, but it depicts the work of an enthusiastic labor inspector who we all hope to see in real life.

BANG!

JO JIN GAB

Male in his late 30s, nickname Jo Jang Poong, former PE teacher, current level 7 civil servant.

He was a former judo athlete on the national team with a promising future, but gets rough while protesting to a referee about a fixed match and ends up breaking his ankle and getting kicked out of the judo association. After some time, he gets a fresh start as a PE teacher. However, while working with troubled students, he blows up at the board president's son and gets branded as an abusive teacher and fired. His tendency to blow up earns him the nickname Jo Jang Poong. He then becomes a level 7 labor inspector, a job everyone tries to avoid. One day, he goes to inspect a delay in payment of wages and meets a former student who is being pushed around by those with power. He tries to tell himself that a single labor inspector can't change the reality, but when he sees his former student disheartened he plans to fight back against those in authority.
